Adonnis Gets Term Of 8 Years

An eight year prison sentence was ordered Monday for Maximillion J. Adonnis, 40, convicted of two counts of grand auto theft in connection with a ring that the judge said stole about $80,000 worth of automobiles.

Adonnis, manager of AFL Motors and a former headwaiter at Sally's Steak House, pleaded guilty to the two counts last February. Eight other charges were dismissed but were read into the record for consideration in sentencing.

Adonnis' attorney, Thomas Doherty, had asked Circuit Judge John F. Foley to give Adonnis probation, saying he had a good work record and was happily married.

"Attila the Hun may have had a happy marriage and kept a job," retorted Joseph Tesch, an assistant district attorney.

Foley, in sentencing Adonnis to prison, said he believed the community needed to be protected from Adonnis.

Adonnis is awaiting trial in both state and federal courts in connection with an alleged extortion plot involving Sally Papa, operator of Sally's Steak House.

Adonnis Gets Term in Auto Theft Case

Maximillion J. Adonnis, 40, was sentenced Monday to eight years at the State Prison in Waupun for his part in an auto theft ring that a judge said involved $80,000 worth of automobiles.

Adonnis, of 1227 S. 14th St., pleaded guilt last February to two counts of grand theft. Eight other charges — three counts of receiving stolen property and five counts of grand theft — were dismissed, but were considered in sentencing by Circuit Judge John F. Foley.

The charges grew out of a grand jury investigation in June of 1972.

Adonnis' attorney, Thomas Doherty, asked that his client be given probation. Doherty said the other defendants convicted for their roles in the auto theft ring had received probation or a sentence under the Huber law whereby they only slept in jail.

Doherty also said Adonnis had a good work record as manager at AFL Motors and that he was happily married. He said he did not believe Adonnis needed to be rehabilitated.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Joseph Tesch argued: "Attila the Hun may have had a happy marriage and kept a job. Anybody can. But that's not what we're here for."

He also said that the State Supreme Court, in a recent decision, said that every defendant had to be treated as an individual, and that the fact that others had gotten different sentences for the same crime was not a valid argument.

Foley said he believed that the community needed protection from Adonnis, who he said seemed to be an available person when there was a need for criminal activity. He said he considered Adonnis' past record and the seriousness of the crime in which there were some $80,000 worth of autos involved in an auto theft ring.

Adonnis also faces state and federal charges as part of an alleged extortion plot involving Sally Papia. Adonnis is a former part time headwaiter at Sally's Steak House.

Foley denied a request to delay sentencing for 45 days so that Doherty could confer with Adonnis in preparation for the federal trial, which is scheduled to begin Nov. 17.

Extortion Defendant Admits Guilt

Herbert H. Holland, 32, one of six persons indicted by a federal Grand Jury last April in an alleged extortion plot, pleaded guilty Wednesday in Federal Court.

Holland, a former massage parlor operator, is expected to be one of the government's key witnesses in the trial of the other defendants.

Holland told Federal Judge John W. Reynolds that he had been "hired by a couple of people to break a man's wrists" for $500. He was charged with being a party in a conspiracy to collect debts through extortion and punishment, in violation of the Federal Hobbs Act.

According to the indictment, another defendant, Mrs. Sally Papia, 43, made a loan to Kurt Amidzich, a former chef at her restaurant, Sally's Steak House, 1028 E. Juneau Ave.

Amidzich allegedly failed to repay the loan, and Holland and John Jacob Schlechter, an unindicted co-conspirator, were hired to beat up the chef, federal authorities here said.

Reynolds ordered a presentence investigation for Holland, who faces a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

The other defendants are James R. Jennaro, 44, of 1570 N. Prospect Ave.; Joseph V. Basile, 35, of 1441 Cherrywood La., Brown Deer; Russell J. Enea, 34, of 8720 Pelham Pkwy., Bayside, and Maximillion J. Adonis, 40, currently serving an eight year sentence at the State Prison at Waupun.

Testifies on Plot To Break Wrists

By ALIDA JOHNS

A former massage parlor operator said in Federal Court Wednesday that he "was hired by a couple of people to break a fellow's wrists" for $500.

Herbert H. Holland, 32, pleaded guilty Wednesday to a charge of conspiracy in an extortion plot and was found guilty by Judge John W. Reynolds.

Holland was one of six persons, including restaurant operator Sally Papia, charged by the federal grand jury in the extortion plot. Trial of the other five is expected to start Monday.

Tells His Story

Asked by Reynolds to tell in his own words what happened, Holland said he was hired to break the fellow's wrists. "Because he quit one place as a chef and also because of a loan that was given to him while he was working at the restaurant."

"How much were you to get paid for this?" Reynolds asked.

Former operator of Holland answered.

Reynolds ordered a presentence investigation for Holland, who faces a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Former operator of Holland's Massage Parlor, 1915 W. Hampton Ave., he is expected to be a chief government witness in the trial of the other defendants.

They are, in addition to Mrs. Papia, operator of Sally's Steak House, 1028 E. Juneau Ave.; James R. Jennaro, 44, of 1570 N. Prospect Ave.; Maximillion J. Adonnis, 40, currently serving an eight year sentence at the State Prison at Waupun; Joseph V. Basile, 35, of 1441 Cherrywood Lane, Brown Deer, and Russell J. Enea, 34, of 8720 Pelham Pkwy., Bayshore.

Asked About Trial

When asked by the court what the government was prepared to prove if there were a trial, Leah Lampone, an assistant US attorney, told the court:

"We would call Kurt Amidzich, who would testify that prior to Oct. 1, 1974, he was a chef at Sally's Steak House. While employed there, he signed a note promising to pay Sally Papia $2,200 with interest and pledging as security a 1973 Cadillac on which Mrs. Papia had second lien rights.

"Amidzich would testify that Mrs. Papia claimed he owed additional sums. He would testify in October of 1974 he started the Northbrook Inn with Richard Schmitz, James Dwyer and William Gillan.

"In late November, 1974, his Cadillac was taken from the parking lot of the Northbrook Inn. He had a telephone conversation with Mrs. Papia who told him she had his car and it would not be returned until he paid the money he owed her.

Story Recounted

"We would call Schmitz who would testify that about Oct. 21, 1974, the defendants Papia, Jennaro and Russell Enea came to the Northbrook Inn and Mrs. Papia and Mr. Jennaro expressed to him that he and his partner should see the money Amidzich owed them was paid or words to the effect that there could be a fire.

"Mr. Schmitz would further testify that in the early morning hours of Dec. 30, 1974, there was fire at the Northbrook Inn.

"We would call Jacob John Schlechter, the unindicted co-conspirator in this case, who would testify that on Dec. 29, 1974, he received a phone call from defendant Joseph Basile directing him to burn down the Northbrook Inn. He would testify that in the early morning hours of Dec. 30, he did so and that defendant Basile gave him $100, (and) promised him $900 more..."

"Schlechter would testify that on Jan. 11, 1975, he met with defendant Maximillion Adonnis and defendant Herbert Holland at Holland's massage parlor and Adonnis hired both Schlechter and Holland to beat up Amidzich. Schlechter would testify to another meeting in which Adonnis gave Schlechter a photograph of Amidzich with Sally Papia for use in identifying their victim and that he, Schlechter and Holland thereafter unsuccessfully went around the city looking for Amidzich.

"Schlechter would testify that Adonnis told him and Holland that the reason for the beating was, in essence, that Amidzich owed Sally money and was making a fool out of her.

"Schlechter would testify that on Jan. 18, he went to Sally's Steak House with Holland. Also there were defendants Adonnis, Enea, Papia and Jennaro and a discussion ensued as to the beating of Kurt and that defendant Enea gestured that he wanted Amidzich's wrists broken.

"Schlechter would testify he purchased a baseball bat and two ski masks for use in the beating. On Feb. 8, he was informed by defendant Adonnis that Amidzich had been located and was working at the Milwaukee Inn Town Room East and the job on him was to be done that evening.

"Schlechter would testify that in the early morning hours of Feb. 9, he and Holland were driving around the Milwaukee Inn waiting for Amidzich to emerge and they had in their possession at that time a bat and ski masks which they intended to use in the beating of Amidzich but that they were stopped by officers of the Milwaukee Police Department and thereafter called off the events, the plans for that night."

Testifies on Plot To Break Wrists

By ALIDA JOHNS

A former massage parlor operator said in Federal Court Wednesday that he "was hired, by a couple of people to break a fellow's wrists" for $500.

Herbert H. Holland, 32, pleaded guilty Wednesday to a charge of conspiracy in an extortion plot and was found guilty by Judge John W. Reynolds.

Holland was one of six persons, including restaurant operator Sally Papia, charged by the federal grand jury in the extortion plot. Trial of the other five is expected to start Monday.

Tells His Story

Asked by Reynolds to tell in his own words what happened, Holland said he was hired to break the fellow's wrists, "because he quit one place as a chef and also because of a loan that was given to him while he was working at the restaurant."

"How much were you to get paid for this?" Reynolds asked.

Former operator of Holland answered.

Reynolds ordered a presentence investigation for Holland, who faces a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Former operator of Holland's Massage Parlor, 1915 W. Hampton Ave., he is expected to be a chief government witness in the trial of the other defendants.

They are, in addition to Mrs. Papia, operator of Sally's Steak House, 1028 E. Juneau Ave.; James R. Jennaro, 44, of 1570 N. Prospect Ave.; Maximillion J. Adonis, 40, currently serving an eight year sentence at the State Prison at Waupun; Joseph V. Basile, 35, of 1441 Cherrywood Lane; Brown Deer, and Russell J. Enea, 34, of 8720 Pelham Pkwy., Bayside.

Asked About Trial

When asked by the court what the government was prepared to prove if there were a trial, Leah Lamponé, an assistant US attorney, told the court:

"We would call Kurt Amidzich, who would testify that prior to Oct. 1, 1974, he was a chef at Sally's Steak House. While employed there, he signed a note promising to pay Sally Papia $2,200 with interest and pledging as security a 1973 Cadillac on which Mrs. Papia had second lien rights.

"Amidzich would testify that Mrs. Papia claimed he owed additional sums. He would testify in October of 1974 he started the Northbrook Inn with Richard Schmitz, James Dwyer and William Gillan.

Mrs. Papia Jury Choice Continues

Jury selection will continue Wednesday in the federal trial here of restaurateur Sally Papia and others, with 22 more jurors needed to complete the necessary panel of 50.

After questioning Tuesday by Judge John W. Reynolds and the lawyers for the defendants and the government, 25 prospective jurors were excused.

Some were excused because they said they had read or heard about the case involving an alleged extortion plot and a fire Dec. 30, 1974, at the Northbrook Inn, 9601 N. 124th St., operated by a former chef at Sally's Steak House.

Reynolds told all the prospective jurors that the defendants were Americans of Italian descent.

"Does that make it difficult, awkward for you to give them a fair trial?" Reynolds asked.

"We've heard, read about the so-called organization of the Mafia," he continued. "I don't mean to imply there is such an organization, or if there is, that it exists in Milwaukee."

He asked if anyone had the feeling because of the Italian ancestry and the criminal charges involved that there was a Mafia connection.

No one on the jury panel answered affirmatively to his questions.

Prospective jurors also were asked if they ever had heard of Mrs. Papia's restaurant, Sally's Steak House, 1028 E. Juneau Ave. A number of them said they had eaten there.

Reynolds told the jurors the trial was expected to last three to four weeks, and they would be sequestered.

In addition to Mrs. Papia, 43, of 2880 N. Menomonee River Pkwy., the defendants are James R. Jennaro, 45, of 1570 N. Prospect Ave.; Russell J. Enea, 34, of 8720 N. Pelham Pkwy., Bayside; Maximillion J. Adonnis, 40, currently serving an eight year sentence at the State Prison at Waupun and Joseph V. Basile, 35, of 1441 Cherrywood La., Brown Deer.

Move to Block Testimony Loses

By ALIDA JOHNS

Federal Judge John W. Reynolds Monday denied a motion to suppress the testimony of Herbert H. Holland in the extortion trial of restaurant operator Sally Papia and four others.

Holland, 32, of 8531 W. Douglas Ave., has changed his plea to guilty on a conspiracy count. He will be a government witness.

Selection of the jury for the trial is slated to start Tuesday.

After a daylong hearing Monday, Reynolds denied motions for separate trials for the defendants. His ruling came at the end of the evidentiary hearing, closed to the public.

The defendants offered testimony on the question of how separate trials would affect them.

A panel of 150 potential jurors has been called for Tuesday.

The trial is expected to last as long as three weeks, but Reynolds previously said he would reserve the right to allow jurors to go home for Thanksgiving.

In addition to Mrs. Papia, 43, operator of Sally's Steak House, 1028 E. Juneau Ave., other defendants are James R. Jennaro, 44, of 1570 N. Prospect Ave.; Maximillion J. Adonis, 40, currently serving an 8 year sentence at the State Prison at Waupun; Joseph J. Basile, 35, of 1441 Cherrywood La., Brown Deer, and Russell J. Enea, 34, of 8720 Pelham Pkwy., Bayside.

The five were indicted on charges stemming from an alleged extortion plot and a fire Dec. 30, 1974, at the Northbrook Inn, 9601 N. 124th St., operated by a former chef at Sally's.

In asking to have Holland's testimony suppressed, defense lawyers had argued that the government concealed from the other defendants the fact that Holland had agreed to become a government witness.

Lawyers for Mrs. Papia, in arguing for separate trials, have said other defendants would be called as witnesses but would probably exercise their constitutional privilege against self-incrimination and refuse to testify.

"In late November, 1974, his Cadillac was taken from the parking lot of the Northbrook Inn. He had a telephone conversation with Mrs. Papia who told him she had his car and it would not be returned until he paid the money he owed her.

Story Recounted

"We would call Schmitz who would testify that about Oct. 21, 1974, the defendants Papia, Jennaro and Russell Enea came to the Northbrook Inn and Mrs. Papia and Mr. Jennaro expressed to him that he and his partner should see the money Amidzich owed them was paid or words to the effect that there could be a fire.

"Mr. Schmitz would further testify that in the early morning hours of Dec. 30, 1974, there was fire at the Northbrook Inn.

"We would call Jacob John Schlechter, the unindicted co-conspirator in this case, who would testify that on Dec. 29, 1974, he received a phone call from defendant Joseph Basile directing him to burn down the Northbrook Inn. He would testify that in the early morning hours of Dec. 30, he did so and that defendant Basile gave him $100, (and) promised him $900 more."

"Schlechter would testify that on Jan. 11, 1975, he met with defendant Maximillion Adonnis and defendant Herbert Holland at Holland's massage parlor and Adonnis hired both Schlechter and Holland to beat up Amidzich. Schlechter would testify to another meeting in which Adonnis gave Schlechter a photograph of Amidzich with Sally Papia for use in identifying their victim, and that he, Schlechter and Holland thereafter unsuccessfully went around the city looking for Amidzich.

"Schlechter would testify that Adonnis told him and Holland that the reason for the beating was, in essence, that Amidzich owed Sally money and was making a fool out of her.

"Schlechter would testify that on Jan. 18, he went to Sally's Steak House with Holland. Also there were defendants Adonnis, Enea, Papia and Jennaro and a discussion ensued as to the beating of Kurt and that defendant Enea gestured that he wanted Amidzich's wrists broken.

"Schlechter would testify he purchased a baseball bat and two ski masks for use in the beating. On Feb. 8, he was informed by defendant Adonnis that Amidzich had been located and was working at the Milwaukee Inn Town Room East and the job on him was to be done that evening.

"Schlechter would testify that in the early morning hours of Feb. 9, he and Holland were driving around the Milwaukee Inn waiting for Amidzich to emerge and they had in their possession at that time a bat and ski masks which they intended to use in the beating of Amidzich but that they were stopped by officers of the Milwaukee Police Department and thereafter called off the events, the plans for that night."
